INTRODUCTION.

THE KENTISH DIALECT finds its expression in peculiarities of phrase and pronunciation rather than in any great number of distinctly dialectical words. In many respects it closely resembles the dialect of Sussex, though it retains a distinctive character, and includes a considerable number of words which are unknown in the neighbouring County.

The Kentish pronunciation is so much more coarse and broad than that of Sussex, that many words which are common to both dialects can scarcely be recognised a few miles away from the border; and many words of ordinary use become strangely altered. As an instance, the word elbow may be taken, which first has the termination altered by the substitution of ber [ber] for bow [boa], and becomes elber [el·ber]. The e is next altered to a, and in Sussex the word would be generally pronounced alber [al·ber], in which form it is still recognisable; but the Kentish man alters the al into ar [aa], and knocking out the medial consonant altogether, pronounces the word arbor [aa·ber], and thus actually retains only one letter out of the original five. The chief peculiarities of pronunciation are these,—
Introduction.

Such words as barrow and carry become bar and carr [baa, kaa].

a [a] before double d is pronounced aa; as leather [laa'da] for ladder.

a [a] before double l becomes o; as fooler [fooler] for fallow.

a [a] before l is lengthened into eaa; as pleit [pleet] for pale.

Double e, or the equivalent of it, becomes i; as "ship in the fit" [ship in dhu' hi] for "sheep in the field."

Then, by way of compensation, i is occasionally pronounced like double e; as "The meece got into the hevee" [Dhu' mee's got in'tu' dhu' heev] for "the nice got into the hive."

i appears as e in such words as pet [pet] for fit.

o before n is broadened into two syllables by the addition of an obscure vowel; as "Doant ye see the old poany be all skin and boains" [doaan'nt ye see dhu' oald poa'ny bee aul skin un boa'hs].

on is lengthened by prefixing a [a]; the resulting sound being [aun]. "The haounds were raound our haouse yesterday." [Dhu' hawnds wer raund our hawes yesterda].

The voiced th [th] is invariably pronounced d; so that, this, then, though become dat, dis, den, dough [dat, dis, den, doa].

In words such as fodder (A.S. fodoer), where the old d comes between two vowels, the dialect has tha [th], as fodher.

The final letters are transposed in wasp, hasp, and many words of similar termination. Hence these become [wops, haps].

w and v change places invariably when they are initial; as "very well" for very well.

Peculiarities of construction appear in the case of a large class of words, whereof "upgrown," "outstand," "nought," "over-run" and others may be taken as types.

Almost every East Kent man has one or two special words of his own, which he has himself invented, and these become very puzzling to those who do not know the secret of their origin; and as he dislikes the intrusion of any words beyond the range of his own vocabulary, he is apt to show his resentment by taking so little trouble to pronounce them correctly, that they generally become distorted beyond all recognition. Broad titus, for instance, would not easily be understood to mean bronchitis.

The East Kent man is, moreover, not fond of strangers, he calls any new-comers into the village "furniners," and pronounces their names as he pleases. These peculiarities of speech and temper all tend to add to the difficulty of understanding the language in which the Kentish people express themselves.

The true dialect of Kent is now found only in the Eastern portion of the County, and especially in the Weald. It has been affected by many influences, most of all, of course, by its geographical position, though it seems strange that so few French words have found their way across the narrow streak of sea which separates it from France.

The purity of the dialect diminishes in proportion to the proximity to London of the district in which it is spoken. It may be said that the dialectal sewage of the Metropolis finds its way down the river and is deposited on the southern bank of the Thames, as far as the limits of Gravesend-Reach, whence it seems to overflow and saturate the neighbouring district. The language in which Samuel Weller, Senior and Junior, express themselves in the pages of the Pickwick Papers, affords an excellent specimen of what the Kentish dialect is, when it is brought under the full influence of this saturation.

Our collection of Kentish words and provincialisms has been gathered from various sources. Much has already been done to rescue from oblivion the peculiarities of the dialect. As long ago as 1736 Lewis published a glossary of local words in the second edition of his History of the Isle of Tenet; this was reprinted by Prof. Skeat for the English Dialect Society as 'Glossary B 11,' in 1874. Dr. Pegge's attention was drawn to the subject at the same time, and he compiled a glossary entitled 'Kenticisms,' which remained in manuscript till it was communicated, in 1876, by Prof. Skeat, to the English Dialect Society and to the IX. Vol. of the Archaeologia Cantiana. The MS. was purchased by him at Sir P. Madden's sale, and will be presented to the English Dialect Society.

A large number of Kentish words were found in the pages of Holloway's General Dictionary of Provincialisms (1839), and also in Halliwell's Dictionary of Archaic and Provincial words (1874); and when Professor Skeat suggested to us a more complete glossary of the dialect, we found that these publications had aroused such a considerable interest in the collection of Kentish words, that several collectors were at work in different parts of the County, all of whom most kindly placed their lists of words at our disposal. (One peculiarly interesting collection was given to the Society many years ago by Mr. G. Bode.) The learned Professor has never for a moment abated his interest in our work, and has been always ready with a helping hand. Meanwhile the great local professor of the Kentish language, Mr. H. Knatchbull-Hugessen, M.P., has given us the full benefit of his thorough knowledge of the subject.

In order to exhibit the modern dialect more clearly, references to the specimens of Kentish in the Early and Middle English Periods have been avoided. It may, however, be well to observe here that the peculiarities of the phonology of the old dialect are well shown in some of these. The most important are the following:

1. The inscription in the Codex Aureus, printed in Sweet's Oldest English Texts, p. 174, and reprinted (very accessibly) in Sweet's Anglo-Saxon Reader, Part II., p. 98. This incipience is of the Ninth Century.

3. Some of the Charters printed in Sweet's Oldest English Texts, pp. 425-460. See, in particular, a Charter of Hlothere, No. 4; of Wihtred, No. 5; of Æthelberht, Nos. 6 and 7; of Eardwulf, No. 8; and the Charters numbered 33-44, inclusive. Of these, Nos. 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 34-42, inclusive, are reprinted in Sweet's Anglo-Saxon Reader, Part II., pp. 174-194.

5. Five Sermons in the Kentish dialect of the Thirteenth Century, printed in Morris's Old English Miscellany, pp. 26-36. Two of these are reprinted in Morris's Specimens of English, Part II., pp. 141-161. The grammatical forms found in these Sermons are discussed in the Preface to the Old English Miscellany, pp. xiii.-xvi.

It may be added that the Psalter, known as the Vaspasian Psalter, printed in Sweet's Oldest English Texts, is now ascertained to be Mercian. It was first printed by Stevenson for the Surtees Society in 1843-4, under the impression that it was "Northumbrian" a statement which will not bear even a hasty test. Mr. Sweet at first claimed it as "Kentish" (Trans. of the Phil. Soc. 1877, Part III., p. 555), but a closer investigation proves it to be Mercian, as Mr. Sweet has himself shown.

It may be mentioned that the collection of words presented in this Dictionary has been in process of formation for no less than fourteen years, and in the course of that time we found many instances of folk lore and proverbial expressions, which have been retained in expectation that they may form the nucleus of a separate work to be published hereafter.

At the end of this book a few blank pages will be found perforated so as to be detached without injuring the rest, and upon these we hope that many notes on Folk Lore and Local Proverbs, and quaint words and anecdotes, illustrative of Kentish dialect and character, may be jotted down from time to time and forwarded to Rev. W. F. Shaw, Eastry Vicarage, Sandwich, in whose hands they will help to the completion of a work which promises to be one of considerable interest.

DICK AND SAL

AT CANTERBURY FAIR.

The following was written by the late Mr. John White Masters, who was brought up in the neighbourhood of Faversham, under circumstances which gave him special facilities for making notes upon the Kentish Dialect as it was spoken in the early part of the present century. There seems to be internal evidence that the hero and heroine of the tale started from the village of Sheidwick (with which Mr. Masters was connected). The Verses were first published before 1823, but the exact date is unknown.

1. THE bailiff's boy had overslept,
   The cows were not put in;
   But rosy Mary cheerly stept,
   To milk them on the green.

2. Dick staggered with a carf of hay,
   To feed the bleating sheep;
   Proud thus to usher in the day,
   While half the world's asleep.

3. And meeting Mary with her pail,
   He said, "If you will stay,
   I'll tell ya jest a funny tale,
   About my holiday."

4. 'Twas then by some auspicious hap,
   That I was passing near 'im,
   And as he seem'd a likely chap,
   Thinks I, I'll stop and hear 'im.

5. Now, Mary broke her steady pace,
   And down she set her pail;
   Dick brush'd the hay seeds off his face,
   And thus began his tale:
Dick and Sal

6. "Ya see when Michaelmas come roun,
   I thought dat Sal and I,
   Ud go to Canterbury town,
   To see what we cud buy.

7. For when I lived at Challock Lees,
   Our second-man had bin;
   And once when he was carrying peas,
   He told me what he'd sin.

8. He sed dare was a teejuus fair,
   Dat lasted for a wick;
   And all de ploughmen dat went dare,
   Must car dair shining-stick.

9. An how dat dare was nable rigs,
   An merriander's jokes;
   Snuff-boxes, shows, and whirlygigs,
   An houghed sight o' folks.

10. But what queer'd me, he sed, 'twas kep
    All round about de Church;
    And how dey had him up de steps,
    And left him in de lurk.

11. At last he got into de street,
    An den he lost his road;
    An Bet and he come to a gate,
    Whar all de soagers stud.

12. Den she ketcht fast hold av his han',
    For she was reythur scar'd;
    Tom sed when last he see 'em stan',
    He thought she'd be afared.

13. But one dat had a great broad soord,
    Did 'left wheel!' loudly cry;
    And all de men scared at his word,
    Flew roun ta let dem by.

14. And den de drums dey beat ya know,
    De soagers dey was prancin;
    Tom told me dat it pleased 'em so,
    They coud'n kip from dancin.

At Canterbury Fair.

15. So I told feyther what I thought
    'Bout goong to de fair;
    An den he told me what he bought,
    When moder and he was dare.

16. He bought our Jack a leather cap,
    An Sal a money-puss;
    An Tom an Jem a spinnin tap,
    An me a little hoss.

17. Den moder drummin in my ear,
    Told all dat she had done;
    For doe she liv'd for fifty year,
    She'd never sin such fun.

18. So Sal and I was mighty glad,
    Ta hear sudge news as dat;
    An I set off ta neighbour Head,
    Ta get a new straa hat.

19. An Thursday mornin Sal an I,
    Set out ta goo ta fair;
    An moder an day wish't us good bye,
    An told Sal ta taak care.

20. But jest as o'er the stile we got,
    She call'd her back agin,
    An sed, 'Ya taak yer milkin coat,
    Fer I're afared 'twill rain.'

21. Sal got de coat, an we agin,
    Did both an us set sail;
    An she sed, 'Was she sure 'too'd rain,
    She never oo'd turn tall.'

22. De clover was granable wet,
    Sa when we crast de medder,
    We both upan de hardle set,
    An den begun concedir.

23. De Folkston gals looked houghed black,
    * Old Waller'd roar'd about:
    Ses I ta Sal, 'Shall we go back!'
    'Na, na,' says she, 'kip out.'

* This expression cannot be clearly explained.
Dick and Sal

24. 'Ya see the lark is mountain high,
   De clouds ta undermine;
   I lay a graat he clears de sky,
   And den it wull be fine.'

25. An sure enough old Sal was right,
   De Folkston gals was missin;
   De sun and sky begun look bright,
   An Waller'd stopt his hissin.

26. An so we sasselsail'd along,
    An crass de fields we sil'er'd,
    While dickey lark kep up his song
    An at de clouds conniver'd.

27. De rain an wind we left behind,
    De clouds was scar'd away;
    Bright Phebus he shut-fisted shin'd,
    And 'twas a lightful day.

28. We tore like mad through Perry ood,
    An jest beyand Stone Stile,
    We got inta de turnpik road,
    An kep it all de while.

29. An den we went through Shanford Street,
    An over Chartham Down;
    My wig! how many we did meet,
    A coming from de town.

30. An some sung out, 'Dare's Moll and Jan,'
    But we ne'er cared for it;
    Through thick an thin we blunder'd an,
    An got ta Wincheap Street.

31. I sed, 'We're got here sure enough,
    We'll kip upon de causeway;'
    But Sal sed, 'Tis sa plagued rough,
    Less get inta de hossway.'

32. An so we stagger'd den ya know,
    An gaap't and stared about;
    Ta see de houses all a row,
    An signs a hanging out.

At Canterbury Fair

33. An when a goodish bit we'd bin,
    We turn'd to de right han';
    An den we turn'd about agin,
    An see an alus stan.

34. Sal thought it was de Góat or Hine—
    I didn' know for my part;
    But when we look't apan de sign,
    De reading was de 'White Hart.'

35. Den we went through a géat ya see,
    An down a gravel walk:
    An's we stood unnerneath a tree,
    We heard de people talk.

36. So Sal, ya know, hev'd up her face,
    Ad see 'em al stan roun,
    Upon a gurt high bank an pléace,
    An we apan de goun.

37. Den I gaapt up and see 'em all,
    An wonder'd what could be—
    Sa I turns round an says to Sal,
    'Less clamber up an see.'

38. But she was rather scared at fust
    Fer fear a tumblin down;
    An den we tap made game an us,
    An told us ta goo roun.

39. Jigger! I wooden give it up,
    So took her roun de nick,
    An holf'd her patts ta de top,
    An dragg'd her through de quick.

40. An den she turn'd erself about,
    An sed 'twas rather rough;
    But when we found de futway out,
    We went up safe enough.

41. An when we got to de tip top,
    We see a marble mountain—
    A gurt high stone thing histed up,
    Jest like a steeple countin.
Dick and Sal

42. An dare we see, ah! all de town,
    Houses, an winmills grindin;
* An gospells feedin on de groun,
    An boys de dunnocks mindin.

43. How we was scared—why, darn my skin!
    I lay dat dare was more
    Houses an churches den we'd sin
    In all ur lives afore.

44. An when we'd stared and gaap'd all roun,
    And thought we'd sin 'em all;
    We turned about for ta come down,
    But got apen a wall.

45. An Sal lookt over as we past,
    Ta see de ivy stick,
    An if I hud'en held her fast,
    She would a brok 'er nick.

46. Den on we went, an soon we see
    A brick place, where instead,
    A being at top, as't ought to be,
    De road ran unneread.

47. An dare we pook't and peek'd about,
    Ta see what made it stick up;
    But narn o' us cou'den find it out,
    What kep the middle brick up.

48. An Sal sung out, 'Why dis here wall,
    It looks sa old an bagged;
    I'm mortally afared 'twill fall!'
    And I was deadly shagged.

49. An when we got into de street,
    A coach dat come from Dover,
    Did gran nigh tread us under feet,
    An Sal was 'most run over.

50. And so we stiver'd right acrass,
    And went up by a mason's;
    An come down to a gurt big house—
    I lay it was de Pason's!

* It is supposed that some error in printing may have created the two words gospells and dunnocks, which occur in this stanza, for the most careful enquiries have failed to identify them.

At Canterbury Fair.

51. And den we turn'd to de left han,
    An down into de street,
    An see a gurt fat butcher stan,
    Wid shop chuck full o' meat.

52. Den all at once we made a stop,
    I thought Sal would a fainted;
    When lookin in a barber's shop,
    Sa fine de dolls was painted.

53. And dare was one an 'em I'll swear
    Jest like de Pason's wife;
    Wid nose, an eyes, an teeth, an hair,
    As nat'ral as life.

54. So dare we stopt a little space,
    An sed 'How queer it looks';
    But soon we see anudder place,
    And dat was crammed wid books.

55. I sed ta her 'What books dare be,
    Dare's supm ta be sin,'
    Den she turn'd round, and sed to me,
    'Suppose we do go in.'

56. Now, Sal, ye see, had bin ta school—
    She went to old aunt Kite;
    An so she was'en quite a fool,
    But cud read purty tight.

57. She larnt her A B C, ya know,
    Wid D for dunce and dame,
    An all dat's in de criss-cress row,
    An how to spell her name.

58. Sa in we went an down we squot,
    An look't in every carner;
    Den ax't de ooman if she'd got
    De book about Tom Harner.

59. It put Sal almost out a breath,
    When fust we went in dare;
    De ooman was sa plaguey death,
    She cou'den mak 'ar hear.
Dick and Sal

60. At last de man he hard us bawl,
    So out ya know he coom;
An braught de book, an gin't ta Sal,
    An sa we carr'd it hoom.

61. An Sal 'as red it throo and throo,
    An lint it to 'er brudder;
An feyther loike to have it too,
    An wish'd we'd bought anudder.

62. Den we came to anudder street,
    Where all was butcher's shops;
Dare was a tarnal sight of meat,
    An steeks, an mutton-chops.

63. An dare was aluses by swarms—
    I lay dare was a dozen!
An he dat kep de Butcher's Arms,
    Was old Jan Hillses cousin.

64. And so as Sal lookt purtty fine,
    We thot we'd goo in dare;
An hav a sup a beer ar two,
    Afore we went ta fair.

65. De landlord he lookt moighty brave,
    Wid his gurt rosy cheeks;
An axt us if we loike to have
    A pound ar two a steeks.

66. Sa when we lict de platters out,
    An yoffled down de beer,
I sed ta Sal, 'Less walk about,
    An try an find de fair.'

67. An's we went prowling down de street,
    We met old Simon Cole;
He cla'd hold on her round de nick,
    An 'gun to suck her joile.

68. Now, dash my wig! dat put me out,
    For dare was Sal a squallin;
I fedge him sich a tarnal clout,
    Dat down I knockt him spraalin.

At Canterbury Fair.

69. Dare he lay grumblin in de gutter,
    De folks day gather'd roun' us,
An crowded in wid such a clutter,
    De same as if dey'd poun' us.

70. An dis was jist aside de shop,
    Where all de picters hung;
An books an sich like mabblled up,
    An now an tan a song.

71. An dare we strain'd, an stared, an blous'd,
    An' tried ta get away;
But more we strain'd, de more they scroug'd,
    An sung out, 'Giv 'em play.'

72. Den Simon swore by all dats good,
    He'd knock me inta tinder;
An blow'd if I did'en think he ood,
    Fer' knockt me throught de winder.

73. An tore my chops most cruelly,
    De blood begun ta trickle;
You wou'den a know'd it had bin me,
    I was in such a pickle.

74. Now jigger me tight! dat rais'd my fluff,
    I claw'd hold av his mane;
An' mint ta fetch his head a cuff,
    But brok anudder pane.

75. Den I was up, den I gun swear,
    De chaps dey did jist laugh,
An Sal she stompt, an tore her hair,
    An bell'er'd like a calf.

76. I thot I'd fetch him one more pounce,
    So heav'd my stick an meant it;
Jist to a' broke his precious sconce,
    But through de winder sent it.

77. De books and ballots few about,
    Like thatch from off de barn;
Or like de stra dat clutters out
    De 'sheen a thrashing carn.
At Canterbury Fair.

87. So den we stiver'd up de town,
    An found de merry fair;
    Jest at de place dat we coom down,
    When fist we did git dare.

88. Den I took Sarer by de han',
    An won'den treat her scanty;
    An hol'd down sixpence to de man,
    An gin her nuts a plenty.

89. An den, ya know, we seed de show,
    An when we'd done and tahn'd about,
    Sal sed to me, 'I think I see
    Old Glover wid his round-about;

90. An dat noo boit dat Akuss made,
    And snuff-boxes beside;'
    So den we went to him an sed
    We'd loike to have a ride.

91. An up we got inta de boit,
    But Sal began to mander;
    For fare de string, when we'd gun swing,
    Shud brake an cum asunder.

92. But Glover sed 'It is sa tuff,
    'Tud be a dull men;'
    An when he tho't we'd swung enuff,
    He tuk us down agin.

93. An den he lookt at me and sed,
    'It seems to please your wife;'
    Sal grin'd, and sed 'She never had Sudge fun in all her life.'

94. De snuff-boxes dey did jest fly,
    And sunder cum de rem;
    Dangle de skin ain't! sed I
    I'll have a rap at dem.

95. My nable! there was lots of fun,
    An sich hubbub an hollar;
    De donkeys dey for cheeses run,
    An I grin'd through a collar.
Dick and Sal.

96. Den Sal she run for half-a-crown,
    An I jump in a sack,
    An shou'd a won, but I fell down,
    An gran nigh brok my back.

97. Den we went out inta de town,
    An had some gin an stuff;
    An Sal bought her a bran noo gown,
    An sed she'd sin enuff.

98. Jigger! I wou'd buy har a ribb'n;
    So when we'd bin and got it,
    I told 'er dat 'twas almost sebb'm,
    An tho'f we'd better fut it.

99. An somehow we mistook the road,
    But ax till we got right,
    So foun our way throo Perry 'ood,
    An got home safe at night."

100. Thus Dick his canister unpack'd—

“I’ve only had two small brenbutterers for my dinner.”

BRENT [brent] adj. Steep. In a perambulation of the outbounds of the town of Faversham, made in 1611, “the Brent” and “the Brent gate” are mentioned. The Middle-English word Brent most commonly meant “burnt;” but there was another Brent, an adjective, which signified steep, and it was doubtless used here in the latter sense, to describe the conformation of the land.

BRET [breɪt] (1) sb. To fade away; to alter. Standing corn so ripe that the grain falls out, is said to bret out. (See Brit.)

BRET [breɪt] (2) vb. A portion of wood torn off with the strig in gathering fruit. (See Spaller.)

BRIEF [ˈbriːf] (1) sb. A petition drawn up and carried round for the purpose of collecting money. Formerly, money was collected in Churches, on brieves, for various charitable objects, both public and private; and in some old Churches you may even now find a Brief Book, containing the names of the persons or places on whose behalf the Brief was taken round, the object, and the amounts collected. Public briefs (see Communion Office, rubrics after the Creed), like Queen’s Letters, have fallen into disuse; and now only private and local Briefs are in vogue.

BRIEF [ˈbriːf] (2) adj. Common; plentiful; frequent; rife. “Wipers are very brief here,” i.e., Vipers are very common here.

BRIMP [ˈbrɪmp] sb. The breeze or gad fly which torments bullocks and sheep.

BRIMS [ˈbrɪms]. The same as above.

Kennett. M.S. Lans., 1033, gives the phrase—

“You have brims in your tail,” i.e., “You are always restless.”

BRIMSEY [ˈbrɪmzi]i. The same as above.

BRISH [ˈbrɪʃ] vb. To brush; to mow over lightly, or trim.

1636.—“For shreding of the ashes and brishinge of the quicksettes . . . . viij.”—MS. Accounts St. John’s Hospital, Canterbury.

BRIT [brɪt] vb. To knock out; rub out; drop out. Spoken of corn dropping out, and of hops shattering. (See Bret.)

BROACH [ˈbrəʊʃ] sb. A spit. This would seem to be the origin of the verb, “to broach a cask,” “to broach a subject.”

BROCKMAN [ˈbrəʊkˌmæn] sb. A horseman. (See Brok.) The name Brockman is still common in Kent.
BROK, BROCK [brok] sb. An inferior horse. The word is used by Chaucer, Canterbury Tales, 7125.

BROOK [bruuk] vb. To brook one’s name, is to answer in one’s disposition to the purport of one’s name. In other places they would say, “Like by name and like by nature.”

“Seems as though Mrs. Buck makes every week washin’ week; she brooks her name middlin’, anyhow.”

BROOKS [brucks] sb., pl. Low, marshy ground, but not necessarily containing running water or even springs.

BROOM-DASHER [broom-dashur] sb. One who goes about selling brooms; hence used to designate any careless, slovenly, or dirty person. “The word dasher is also combined in haberdasher.”

BROWSSELLS [brouzls] sb., pl. The remains of the fleece of a pig, after the lard has been extracted by boiling.

BRUFF [bruf] adj. Blunt; rough; rude in manner.

“I’m quite brumpt,” i.e., I have no money.

BRUNGEON [brunjyun] sb. A brat; a neglected child.

BRUSH [bruosh and brush] vb. To trim edges; to mow rough grass growing thinly over a field.

“Jack’s off hedge-brushing.”

1540.—“To Saygood for brushhyng at Hobbs meadow . . . . vjd.”

—MS. Accounts St. John’s Hospital, Canterbury.

BRUSS [brus] adj. Brisk; forward; petulant; proud.

“Deser’eere bees be middlin’ bruus this marrin’, there ain’t no goin’ into de garden for ’em, they’ve bit me three times already.”

---

BRUT [brut] (1) vb. To browse or nibble off young shoots.

In the printed conditions of the sale of Kentish cherry-orchards, there is generally a clause against “excessive brutting,” i.e., that damage so done by the purchasers must be paid for.

BRUT [brut] (2) vb. To shoot, as buds or potatoes.

“My taters be brutted pretty much dis year.”

BRUT [brut] (3) vb. To break off the young shoots (bruts) of stored potatoes.

BUCK [buk] (1) vb. To wash.

BUCK [buk] (2) sb. A pile of clothes ready for washing.

It is now (1885) some 60 years ago since the farmers washed for their farm servants, or allowed them a guinea a year instead. Then the lye, soap, and other things were kept in the bunting house; and there, too, were piled the gaberdines, and other things waiting to be washed until there was enough for one buck.

Shakespeare uses the word buck-basket for what we now call “a clothes basket.”

“... They conveyed me into a buck-basket. Ford.—A buck-basket! Fal.—By the Lord, a buck-basket; rammed me in with foul shirts and smocks, socks, foul stockings, greasy napkins...”

—Merry Wives of Windsor, act iii. sc. 5.

BUCK [buk] (3) vb. To fill a basket.

BUCKING [bucking] CHAMBER, sb. The room in which the clothes were bucked, or steeped in lye, preparatory to washing.

BUCK-WASH [buck-wash] sb. A great washing-tub, formerly used in farm-houses, when, once a quarter, they washed the clothes of the farm servants, soaking them in strong lye.

BUD [bud] sb. A weaned calf that has not yet grown into a heifer. So called, because the horns have not grown out, but are in the bud.

“His cow came to ye’ racks a moneth before Christmas, and went away ye’ 21 of January. His bud came at Michaelmas.”—Boteler MS. Account Book of 1652.
BUFF [buf] sb. A clump of growing flowers; “a tuft or hassock.”
   “That’s a nice buff of cloves” (pinks).
   “Yea; you shall pay, you truckle bed,
   Ya buffle-headed ass.” —Dick and Sal, st. 84.
BUG [bug] (1) vb. To bend.
BUG [bug] (2) sb. A general name for any insect, especially those of the fly and beetle kind; e.g., May-bug, Lady-bug, June-bug, July-bug.
BUMBLER [bum-bliser] adj. Awkward; clumsy; ill-fitting.
   “That dress is far too bumblesome.”
   “You can’t car’ that, you’ll find it very bumblesome.”

BURR [bur] (1) sb. A coagulated mass of bricks, which by some accident have refused to become separated, but are a sort of conglomerate.
BURR [bur] (2) sb. The halo or circle round the moon is so called, e.g., “There was a burr round the moon last night.”
   The weather-wise in East Kent will tell you, “The larger the burr the nearer the rain.”
BURR [bur] (3) sb. The blossom of the hop.
   “The hops are just coming out in burr.”
BUSH [bush] sb. Used specially and particularly of the gooseberry bush. “Them there bushes want pruning sadly.”
BUTT [but] sb. A small flat fish, otherwise called the flounder. They are caught in the river at Sandwich by spearing them in the mud, like eels. But at Margate they call turbots butts.
BY-BUSH [bei-bush] adv. In ambush, or hiding.
   “I just stood by-bush and heard all they said.”
BYSACK [bei-sak] sb. A satchel, or small wallet.
BYTHE [beith] sb. The black spots on linen produced by mildew. (See Abited.)
BYTHY [bei-thi] adj. Spotted with black marks left by mildew.
   “When she took the cloth out it was all bythy.”
BYST [beist] sb. A settle or sofa. (See Baist, Boist, above.)
CAD [kad] sb. A journeyman shoemaker; a cobbler; hence a contemptuous name for any assistant.

"His uncle, the shoemaker's cad."

CADE [kaid] sb. A barrel containing six hundred herrings; any parcel or quantity of pieces of beef, less than a whole quarter.

"Cade.—We John Cade, so termed of our supposed father.
Dick.—Or rather, of stealing a cade of herrings."

—II. King Henry VI. act iv. sc. 2.

CAILES [kailz] sb. pl. Skittles; ninepins.

CAKE-BAIL. A tin or pan in which a cake is baked.

CALIVER [kal' ivur] sb. A large pistol or blunderbuss.

1600.—"It in Jonathan Boteler's chamber lower chest and certain furniture for the wars, viz., two corsets, one Jack, two muskets, fur one Horseman's piece, fur a case of daggers, two calivers, fur with swords and daggers prized at . . . . iiiii."

—Boteler Inventory; Memorials of Eastry, p. 225.

CALL [kaul] (1) sb. A word in every-day use denoting necessity, business, but always with the negative prefixed.

"There ain't no call for you to get into a passion."

CALL-OVER [kaul-ova-var] vb. To find fault with; to abuse.

"Didn't he call me over jist about."

CALLOW [kal' o] adj. Smooth; bald; bare; with little covering; also used of underwood thin on the ground.

"'Tis middlin' rough in them springs, but you'll find it as callow more, in the high wood."

In Sussex the woods are said to be getting callow when they are just beginning to bud out.

CANT [kant] (1) sb. A portion of corn or woodland.

Every farm-bailiff draws his cant furrows through the growing corn in the spring, and has his cant-book for harvest, in which the measurements of the cant appear, and the prices paid for cutting each of them.

CANT [kant] (2) vb. To tilt over; to upset; to throw.

"The form canted up, and over we went."

CANT [kant] (3) sb. A push, or throw.

"I gave him a cant, jis' for a bit of fun, and fancied he was jistful, and called me over, he did."

CANTEL [kant'l] sb. An indefinite number; a cantel of people, or cattle; diminutive of cant (1). A corner or portion of indefinite dimension; a cantel of wood, bread, cheese, &c.

"See how this river comes me cranking in, And cuts me, from the best of all my land, A huge half moon, a monstrous cantel out."

—King Henry IV. pt. I. act iii. sc. 1.

CANTERBURY-BELLS, sb. pl. The wild campanula. Campanula medicus. The name is probably connected with the idea of the resemblance of the flowers to the small bells carried on the trappings of the horses of the pilgrims to the shrine of St. Thomas, at Canterbury. There are two kinds, large and small; both abound in the neighbourhood of Canterbury.
CAP [kap] sb. Part of the flail which secures the middle-hand to the handstaff or the swinging, as the case may be. A flail has two caps, viz., the hand-staff cap, generally made of wood, and the swinging cap, made of leather.

CAPONS [kā'puns] sb. pl. Red herrings. (See the list of Nicknames—Ramsgate.)

CAR [kaa] vb. To carry.

"He said dare was a tcejus fair
Dat lasted for a wick;
And all de ploughmen dat went dare,
Must car dair shining stick."

—Dick and Sal, st. 8.

CARD [kaad]. (See Code.)

Lewis, p. 120, mentions a card of red-herrings amongst the merchandise paying rates at Margate harbour.

CARPET-WAY [kaa-pit-wai] sb. A green-way; a smooth grass road; or lyste way.

CARRY-ON [kar'-i-on] vb. To be in a passion; to act unreasonably.

"He's been carrying-on any-how."

CARVET [kaav-eyt] sb. A thick hedge-row; a copse by the roadside; a piece of land carved out of another. Used in the neighbourhood of Lympne, in Dr. Pegge's time; so also, in Boteler MS. Account Books, there are the following entries—"Ye Chappell carvet at Sopeshall that I sold this year to John Birch at 50 0 0 ye acre, cont[ained] beside the w[oo]dfall r[ou]d, 1 acre and 9 perches, as Dick Simons saith, who felled it." "I have valued one carvet at Brinsdalse at 71 0 0 ye acre, ye other carvet at 60 0 0 the acre." "Ye one carvet cont[ained] 1 yerd and 1 perch; ye other halfe a yerd want[ing] 1 perch." [i.e., one perch wanting half a yard].

CAST [kaast] sb. The earth thrown up above the level of the ground by moles, ants, and worms, and therefore called a worm-cast, an emmet-cast, or a mole-cast, as the case might be.

"Them wum-caastes do make the lawn so very unlevel."

CAST [kaast] vb. To be thwarted; defeated; to lose an action at law.

"They talk of carr'ing it into court, but I lay he'll be cast."

CATER [kai'tur] vb. To cut diagonally.

CATERWAYS [kai-turwaiz] adv. Obliquely; slantingly; cross-ways.

"He stood aback of a tree and skeeted water caterways at me with a squib."

CAVING [kai'vin] sb. The refuse of beans and peas after threshing, used for horse-meat.—W. Kent. Called tauf, toff, in E. Kent.

CAXES [kaks'ez] sb. pl. Dry hollow stalks; pieces of bean stalk about eight inches long, used for catching earwigs in peach and other wall-fruit trees.

CEREMONY [ser'rimuni] sb. A fuss; bother; set-out. Thus a woman once said to me, "There's quite a ceremony if you want to keep a child at home half-a-day." By which she meant that the school regulations were very troublesome, and required a great deal to be done before the child could be excused.—W. F. S.

CHAMPIONING [champ'yuning] parte. The lads and men who go round as mummers at Christmastide, singing carols and songs, are said to go championing. Probably the word is connected with St. George the Champion, who is a leading character in the Mümmer's play.

CHANGES [chāj'njiz] sb. pl. Changes of raiment, especially of the underclothing; body-linen, shirts, or shifts.

"I have just put on clean changes," i.e., I have just put on clean underclothing.

1651.—"For two changes for John Smith's boy, 0 4 0.
For two changes for Spaynes girle, 0 2 10."

—MS. Overseers' Accounts, Holy Cross, Canterbury.
CHANGK [chank] vb. To chew.

CHARNELL, CHARNAIL, sth. A hinge. Perhaps Char-nail, a nail to turn on.

1520.—“For ij hookis and a charnelle ij.”
—MS. Accounts St. John’s Hospital, Canterbury.

1631.—“For charnelle and hapses for the two chests in our hall.” —MS. Accounts St. John’s Hospital, Canterbury.

CHARRIED [chaarid] adj. Drink that is soured in the brewing. If, in brewing, the water be too hot when it is first added to the malt, the malt is said to be charred and will not give its strength, hence beer that is brewed from it will soon turn sour. The word charred thus first applies properly to the malt, and then passes to the drink brewed from it. To char is to turn; we speak of beer being “turned.”

CHART [chaart] sth. A rough common, overrun with gorse, broom, bracken, &c. Thus we have several places in Kent called Chart, e.g., Great Chart, Little Chart, Chart Sutton, Brasted Chart.

CHASTISE [chasteiz] vb. To accuse; to examine; cross question; catechize.

“He had his hearings at Faversham t’other day, and they chastised him of it, but they couldn’t make nothin’ of him.”

CHAT, sth. A rumour; report.

“They say he’s a-going to live out at Hoo, leastways, that’s the chat.”

CHATS [chats] sth. pl. Small potatoes; generally the pickings from those intended for the market.

CHAVISH [chaivish] adj. Peevish; fretful.

CHEE [chee], or HEN-CHEE [hen-chee] sth. A roost.

“The fowls are gone to chee.”

“The bailiff’s boy had overslept,
The cows were not put in;
But rosy Mary cheerly stept
To milk them on the green.”
—Dick and Sal, st. 1.

CHEF [chef] sth. The part of a plough on which the share is placed, and to which the reece is fixed.

CHERRY APPLES [cherr-i aplz] sth. pl. Siberian crabs, or choke cherries.

CHERRY-BEER, sth. A kind of drink made from cherries.
Pudding-pies and cherry-beer usually go together at these feasts [at Easter].
—Brand’s Popular Antiquities, ed. Ellis i. 180.

CHILTED [chiltid] pp. Strong local form of chilled, meaning thoroughly and injuriously affected by the cold.

CHING [chinch] sth. To point or fill up the interstices between bricks, tiles, &c., with mortar.—E. Kent.

“In the N. of England they call the bird Chity Wren.”

CHOATY [choat-iti] adj. Chubby; broad faced.

“He’s a choaty boy.”
CHOCK [chok] vb. To choke. Anything over-full is said to be chock-full.

CHOFF [chof] adj. Stern; morose.

CHOICE [chois] adj. Careful of; setting great store by anything.

"Sure, he is choice over his peas, and no mistake!"

CHOP-STICKS [chop-stiks] sb. pl. Cross-sticks to which the lines are fastened in pout-fishing.

"Two old umbrella iron ribs make capital chop-sticks."—F. Buckland.

CHRIST-CROSS [kris-kras] sb. The alphabet. An early school lesson preserved in MS. Rawl. 1032, commences "Christe crosse me speed in alle my worke." The signature of a person who cannot write is also so called.

"She larn' her A B C ya know,
Wid D for dunce and dame,
An all dats in de criss-cras row,
An how to spell her name."—Dick and Sall, st. 57.

CHUCK [chuk] sb. A chip; a chunk; a short, thick clubbed piece of wood; a good thick piece of bread and cheese; the chips made by sharpening the ends of hop-poles.

CHUFF [chuf] adj. Fat; chubby. (See Choaty above.)

CHUMMERS [chum'mi] sb. A chimney sweep.

CHURCHING, sb. The Church service generally, not the particular Office so called.

"What time's Churchin' now of afternoons?"

CLAMP [klamp] sb. A heap of mangolds, turnips, or potatoes covered with straw and earth to preserve them during the winter. It is also used of bricks.

"We must heal in that clamp afore the frostes set in."

CLAPPERS [klap'urz] sb. pl. Planks laid on supports for foot passengers to walk on when the roads are flooded.

CLAPSE [klapz] sb. A clasp, or fastening.

CLEAN [kleen] adv. Wholly; entirely.

"He's clean gone, that's certain."

1610.—"Until all the people were passed clean over Jordan."—Joshua iii. 17.

CLEANSE [klenz] vb. To tune, or put beer up into the barrel.

CLEDGY [klej'ri] adj. Stiff and sticky.

CLEVEL [klev'l] sb. A grain of corn, clean and free from husk. As our Blessed Lord is supposed to have left the mark of a Cross on the shoulder of the ass' colt, upon which He rode at His triumphal entry into Jerusalem (St. Mark xi. 7); and as the mark of a thumb and fore-finger may still be traced in the head of a haddock, as though left by St. Peter when he opened the fish's mouth to find the piece of money (St. Matthew xvii. 27), even so it is a popular belief in East Kent that each clevel of wheat bears the likeness of Him who is the True Corn of Wheat (St. John xii. 24). As a man said to me at Eastry (1887)—"Brown wheat shews it more than white, because it's a bigger clevel." To see this likeness the clevel must be held with the seam of the grain from you.—W. F. S.
   Thus, it is used in reply to the question, "How are you to-day?" "Well, thank you, not very clever," i.e., not very active; not up to much exertion.

Climbers [kleim'urz] sb. The wild clematis; clematis vitalba, otherwise known as old man's beard.

Clinkers [klingk'urz] sb. pl. The hard refuse cinders of a furnace, stove, or forge, which have run together in large clots.

Clip [klip] vb. To shear sheep.

Close [kloas] sb. The enclosed yard, or fenced-in field adjoining a farm house.
   Thus, at Eastry we speak of Hamel Close, which is an enclosed field immediately adjoining Eastry Court. So a Kentish gentleman writes in 1645: "This was the third crop of hay some closes about Burges yealded that yeare."—Bargrave MS. Diary.
   The word is often met with in Kentish wills; thus, Will of Thomas Godfrey, 1542, has, "My barne,... with the closes to the same apertayning."

Clout [klout] (1) sb. A blow with the palm of the hand.
   "Mind what ye'r 'bout or I will gie ye a clout on the head."
   (2) A clod, or lump of earth, in a ploughed field.

Cluck [kluk] adj. Drooping; slightly unwell; used, also, of a hen when she wants to sit.
   "I didn't get up so very early dis marnin', as I felt rather cluck."

Clung [klung] adj. Withered; dull; out of temper.

Cluther [kluth'ur], Clutter [klut'ur] (1) sb. (i.) A great noise. (ii.) A litter.
   "There's always such a lot of clatter about his room."

Cluther [kludh'ur], Clutter [klut'ur] (2) vb. To make a noise generally, as by knocking things together.
   Used also of the special sound made by rabbits in their hole, just before they bolt out, e.g., "I eerd 'im cluther," i.e., I heard him make a noise; and implying, "Therefore, he will soon make a bolt." A variant of clatter.

Coal-shoot [koal-shoot'] sb. A coal scuttle.

Cob [kob] vb. To throw gently.

Cob-irons [kob-eirns] sb. pl. And-irons; irons standing on the hearth, and intended to keep the brands and burning coals in their place; also the irons by which the spit is supported.
   "One payer of standing cob-yrongs..." "One payer of cob-irones or brand-irones..." "Item in the Greate Hall... a payer of cob-irones."—Boteler Invertisories in the Memorials of Eastry.

   The Bargrave MS. Diary, describing the weather in France in the winter of 1645 says, "My beard had sometimes yce on it as big as my little finger, my breath turning into many cock-bells as I walked."

Cocker [kok'ur] vb. To indulge; to spoil.
   Ecclus. xxx. 9.—"Cocker thy child and he shall make thee afraid."

Cockle [kok'le] sb. A stove used for drying hops.

Cog-bell [kog-bel] sb. pl. An icicle. (See Cock-bell above); Lewis writes cog-bells; and so the word is now pronounced in Eastry.
   "There are some large cog-bells hanging from the thatch."
Coiler-harness. The trace harness.
   Water is said to be out of cold when it has just got the chill off.

   it arrives.
   “It’ll be nine wiks come Sadderday sin’ he were took bad.”
Composant [kom'puzant] sb. The luminous appearance sometimes seen on the masts and yards of ships at sea,
   the result of electricity in the air.
   “Besides hearing strange sounds, the poor fisherman often sees the composant. As he sails along; a ball of fire appears dancing about the top of his mast; it is of a bluish, unearthly colour, and quivers like a candle going out; sometimes it shifts from the masthead to some other portion of the vessel, where there is a bit of pointed iron; and sometimes there are two or three of them on different parts of the boat. It never does anybody any harm, and it always comes when squally weather is about.
   “Englishmen are not good hands at inventing names and I think the Folkestone people most likely picked up the word from the Frenchmen whom they meet out at sea in pursuit of herrings.”—F. Buckland.
Conclude [konkleud] vbd. To decide.
   “So he concluded to stay at home for a bit.”

Cone [koan] vb. To crack or split with the sun, as timber is apt to do; as though a wedge had been inserted in
   it. A derivative of Anglo-Saxon ctnan, to split.
Conniver [konei'vur] sb. To stare; gape.
   “An so we sasselaid along
   And crass de fields we silver’d,
   While dickey lark kept up his song
   An at de clouds conniver’d.”—Dick and Sal, st. 26.

   “Drat that child, he’s downright contrary to-day.”
Conygarte [kun'igaath] sb. A rabbit warren.
   Lambard, 1596.—“The Isle of Thanet, and those Easterner partes are the grayner; the Weald was the wood; Rumnay Marsh is the meadow plot; the North downes towards the Thaymse be the conygarte or wareine.”
Cooch Grass, sb. Triticum repens, a coarse, bad species of grass, which grows rapidly on arable land, and does much mischief with its long stringy roots.
Cool-back [kool-bak] sb. A shallow vat, or tub, about 12 or 18 inches deep, wherein beer is cooled.
   “Item in the brewhouse, two brewinge tonsns, one coole-back, two furnisses, fower tubbs with other . . .
   vij. xiiij.”—Boteler Inventory, Memorials of Easterly, p.
   226.
Cop [kop] sb. A shock of corn; a stack of hay or straw.
   vb. To throw; to heap anything up.
Cope [koap] vb. To muzzle; thus, “to cope a ferret” is to sew up its mouth.
Copse [kops] sb. A fence across a dyke which has no opening. A term used in marshy districts.
CORBEAU [korˈboʊ] sb. The fish Cottus gobio, elsewhere called the miller’s thumb, or bull-head.

CORD-WOOD [kɔrd-wuːd] sb. A pile of wood, such as split-up roots and trunks of trees stacked for fuel. A cord of wood should measure eight feet long × four feet high × four feet thick.

HOG-HEADED, adj. Obstinate.

"He's such a hog-headed old mortal, 'tain't no use saying nothing to him."

HOG-PAT, sb. A trough made of boards.

HOILE [hoi-l] sb. The beard or stalk of barley or other corn. (See Iles.)

HOLL [hol], HULL [hul] vb. To throw; to hurl.

"Ha! there, leave off hulling o' stones."

HOLLY-BOYS AND IVY-GIRLS, sb. pl. It was the custom on Shrove Tuesday in West Kent to have two figures in the form of a boy and girl, made one of holly, the other of ivy. A group of girls engaged themselves in one part of a village in burning the holly-boy, which they had stolen from the boys, while the boys were to be found in another part of the village burning the ivy-girl, which they had stolen from the girls, the ceremony being, in both cases, accompanied by loud huzzas.

HOLP [hoalp] vb. Helped; gave; delivered.

"Assur also is joined with them, and have holpen the children of Lot."—Psalm lxxxiii. 8.

"What did you do with that letter I gave you to the wheelwright?" "I holp it to his wife."

HOLP-UP, vb. Over-worked.

"I dunno as I shaant purty soon look out another place, I be purty nigh holp-up here, I think."

HOMMUCKS [hom-'uks] sb. pl. Great, awkward feet.

HOODENING [hoo-dning] sb. The name formerly given to a mumming or masquerade. Carol singing, on Christmas Eve, is still so called at Monckton, in East Kent.

The late Rev. H. Bennett Smith, Vicar of St. Nicholas-at-Wade, the adjoining parish to Monckton, wrote as follows in 1876,—"I made enquiry of an old retired farmer in my parish, as to the custom called Hoodening. He tells me that formerly the farmer used to send annually round the neighbourhood the best horse under the charge of the wagoner, and that afterwards instead, a man used to represent the horse, being supplied with a tail, and with a wooden [pronounced ooden or hooden] figure of a horse's head, and plenty of horse-hair for a mane. The horse's head was fitted with hob-nails for teeth; the mouth being made to open by means of a string, and in closing made a loud crack. The custom has long since ceased." (See Hodening above.)

HOOGOO [hoo-goo] sb. A bad smell; a horrible stench; evidently a corruption of the French haut gout.

"A Kentish gamekeeper, noticing a horrible stench, exclaimed: 'Well, this is a pretty hoogoo, I think!'"
Dictionary of the Kentish Dialect.

HOOK [huok] sb. An agricultural tool for cutting, of which there are several kinds, viz., the bagging-hook, the rippin-hook, &c.

HOP [hop] (1) sb. To pick hops.

"Mother's gone out hopping."

HOP (2) sb. Wood fit for hop-poles.

HOP-BIND [hop-beind] sb. The stem of the hop, whether dead or alive. (See also Bine.)

HOP-DOG [hop-dog] (1) sb. A beautiful green caterpillar which infests the hop-bine, and feeds on the leaves.

(2) An iron instrument for drawing the hop-poles out of the ground, before carrying them to the hop-pickers.

HOPE [hoap] sb. A place of anchorage for ships.

HOPKIN [hop'kin] sb. A supper for the work-people, after the hop-picking is over. Not often given in East Kent now-a-days, though the name survives in a kind of small cake called huffkin, formerly made for such entertainments. (See Huffkin, Wheatkin.)

HOPPER [hop'pur] sb. A hop-picker.

"I seed the poor hoppers coming home all drenched."

HOPPING [hop'ing] sb. The season of hop-picking.

"A fine harvest, a wet hopping."—Eastry Proverb.

HOP-PITCHER [hop'pitchur] sb. The pointed iron bar used to make holes for setting the hop-poles, otherwise called a dog, a hop-dog, or a fold-pitcher.

HOP-SPUD, sb. A three-pronged fork, with which hop grounds are dug.

HORN [haun] sb. A corner.

HORN-FAIR, sb. An annual fair held at Charlton, in Kent, on St. Luke's Day, the 18th of October. It consists of a riotous mob, who, after a printed summons, disperse through the adjacent towns, meet at Cuckold's Point, near Deptford, and march from thence, in procession, through that town and Greenwich to Charlton, with horns of different kinds upon their heads; and, at the fair, there are sold ram's horns, and every sort of toy made of horn; even the ginger-bread figures have horns. It was formerly the fashion for men to go to Horn-fair in women's clothes.

HORSE [hors] (1) sb. The arrangement of hop-poles, tied across from hill to hill, upon which the pole-pullers rest the poles, for the pickers to gather the hops into the bins or baskets.

HORSE [hors] (2) sb. To tie the upper branches of the hop-plant to the pole.

HORSE EMMETS [hors' em'utz] sb. pl. Large ants.

HORSE-KNOT, sb. The knap-weed; sometimes also called hard-weed. Centaurea nigra.

A.D. 1528.—"Paid for a hors lok . . . vj."—Accounts of St. John's Hospital, Canterbury.

HORSENAILS [hors'nailz] sb. pl. Tadpoles. Probably so called because, in shape, they somewhat resemble large nails.

HORSE-ROAD [hors'road] sb. In Kent, a road is not divided as elsewhere, into the carriage-road and the footpath; but into the horse-road and the foot-road. This name carries us back to the olden times when journeys were mostly made on horseback.

HORSES, sb. pl. To set horses together, is to agree.

"Muster Nidgett and his old 'oman can't set their horses together at all, I understan'".

"Fell off de roof o' de house, he did; fell on's head, he did; hort 'im purty much, I can tell ye."

HOTCH [hotsh] vb. To move awkwardly or with difficulty in an irregular and scrambling way. French, hoccher, to shake, jog, &c. "He hotched along on the floor to the top of the stairs." "I hustled through the crowd and she hotched after me." So, when a man walking with a boy keeps him on the run, he is described as keeping him hotching.

HOUGHED [huff-id] vb., past p. from hough, to hamstring, but often used as a mere expressive.

"Snuff boxes, shows and whirligigs,
An houghed sight of folks." —Dick and Sal, st. 9.

HOUSE [houz] vb. To get the corn in from the fields into the barn.

"We've housed all our corn."

HOUSEL [hous'l] sb. Household stuff or furniture.

"I don't think these here new-comers be up to much; leastways, they didn't want a terrib' big cart to fetch their housel along; they had most of it home in a wheelbar'."

HOVEL [hov'l] (1) vb. To carry on the business of a hoveler.

HOVEL [hov'l] (2) sb. A piece of good luck; a good haul; a good turn or time of hovelling.

In some families, the children are taught to say in their prayers, "God bless father and mother, and send them a good hovel to-night."

HOVELER [hov'il'er] sb. A hoveler's vessel. A Deal boatman who goes out to the assistance of ships in distress, The hovelers also carry out provisions, and recover lost anchors, chains and gear. They are first-rate seamen, and their vessels are well built and well manned.

HOVER [hov'r] adj. Light; puffy; raised; shivery; hunched-up. Hence, poorly, unwell.

HOVER [hov'r] vb. To throw together lightly. There is a special use of this word with regard to hops. In East Kent it is the custom to pick, not in bins, but in baskets holding five or six bushels. The pickers gather the hops into a number of small baskets or boxes (I have often seen an umbrella used), until they have got enough to fill the great basket; they then call the tallyman, who comes with two men with the green-bag; one of the pickers (generally a woman) then comes to hover the hops; this is done by putting both hands down to the bottom of the great basket, into which the hops out of the smaller ones are emptied as quickly but gently as possible, the woman all the while raising the hops with her hands; as soon as they reach the top, they are quickly shot out into the green bag before they have time to sag or sink. Thus, very inadequate measure is obtained, as, probably, a bushel is lost in every tally; indeed, howering is nothing more than a recognized system of fraud, but he would be a brave man who attempted to forbid it.

Howsomever [housumdev'r], Howsoever [hous'um-evr] adv. Howsoever.

"But howsoever, don't ram it down tight, but hover it up a bit."

HUCK [huk] (1) sb. The husk, pod, or shell of peas, beans, but especially of hazel nuts and walnuts.

HUCK [huk] (2) vb., act. and neut. To shell peas; to get walnuts out of their pods.

"Are the walnuts ready to pick?" "No, sir, I tried some and they won't huck."

HUFFKIN [hufkin], HUFFIN, sb. A kind of bun or light cake, which is cut open, buttered, and so eaten. (See Hopkin.)

HUFFLE [huf'l] sb. A merry meeting; a feast.

HUG [heuj], HUGY [heuj'i] adv. Very. "I'm not hugy well." Sometimes they make it a dissyllable, hugy. The saying hugy for huggy is merely the sounding of the final e, as in the case of the name Anne, commonly pronounced An'ni. It is not Annie.
HULL [hul] (1) s£. The shell of a pea.
   "After we have sheel'd them we throw the hulls away."

TIDE [ted'] sb. The tithe. This is a remarkable instance of the way in which th is converted into d in Kent, as wid for with, &c.
good number.

"It's a tidy step right down to the house, I lay."

TIE [teɪ] sb. A foot-race between two competitors. The expression, "Ride and tie," is commonly interpreted to mean, that when two people have one horse, the first rides a certain distance and then dismounts for the second to get up, so that they always tie or keep together.

"Sir Dudley Digges, in 1638, left the yearly sum of £20, to be paid to two young men and two maids, who,
on May 19th, yearly, should run a tie at Old Wives' Lees, in Chilham, and prevail. The lands, from the rent of which the prize was paid, were called the Running Lands." —Hasted, ii. 787.

TIE-TAILS [teɪ-tails] sb. pl. Herrings, which being gill-broken cannot be hung up by their heads; they are therefore tied on the spits by their tails. Though they are just as good eating as the others, they fetch less money; and when I was in the hang, a tiny child came in and addressed the burly owner thus, "Please, sir, mother wants a farthing's worth of tie-tails for her tea." She got two or three, and some broken scraps into the bargain.—F. Buckland.

Whip-sticks [wɪp-stɪks] adv. Quickly; directly.

WHISPERING THE DEATH OF A PERSON. When the master or mistress dies, or other member of a family, where bees are kept, it is customary (in Eastry) for some one to go to the hives and whisper to the bees, that the person is dead. The same custom is observed with regard to cattle and sheep, as a writer in Notes and Queries thus notices: “For many years Mr. Upton resided at Dartford Priory, and farmed the lands adjacent. In 1868, he died. After his decease, his son told the writer (A. J. Dunkin) that the herdsmen went to each of the kine and sheep, and whispered to them that their old master was dead.”

WHIST [wist] adj. Quiet; silent.

“Stand whist! I can hear de ole rabbet!”

1593.—“When all were whist, King Edward thus bespoke, 'Hail Windsor, where I sometimes tooke delight To hawke and hunt, and backe the proudest horse.'”

WHITE-THROAT [weit-throat] sb. The bird so called is rarely spoken of without the adjective jolly being prefixed, e.g., “There’s a jolly white-throat.”

WHORLBARROW [wurl'bar']. Wheelbarrow.—West Kent.

WOOT [woot] vb. Word of command to a cart-horse, “Go to the off side.”—East Kent.

WIBBER [wib'ur] (1) sb. A wheelbarrow. Short for wilber, a contraction of wheelbarrow.

WIBBER [wib'ur] (2) vb. To use a wibber.

“I wibber’d out a wibberfull.”

WID [wid] prop. With. “I’ll be wid ye in a minnit,” e.g., I will be with you in a minute. So widout, for without.

WIFF [wif] sb. A with, withy or bond, for binding fagots. Formerly only the large kind of fagot, which went by the name of kiln-bush, was bound with two wiffs, other smaller kinds with one. But now, as a rule, all fagots are tied up with two wiffs.

WIG [wig] vb. To anticipate; over-reach; balk; cheat.

“‘He’ll have been gone a wik, come Monday.’”

WILK [wilk] sb. A periwinkle. (Anglo-Saxon, wilc.)

WILLOW-GULL [wil-oogul'] sb. The Salix caprea; so called from the down upon it resembling the yellow down of a young gosling, which they call in Kent a gull.

WIMBLE [wimb'l], WYMBLL, sb. (i.) An instrument for boring holes, turned by a handle; still used by wattle makers.

1533.—“For a stoke [stock, i.e., handle] for a nayle wymbyll.”—Accounts of St. John’s Hospital, Canterbury.

(ii.) An instrument for twisting the bonds with which trusses of hay are bound up.

WIND [weind] vb. To twist; to warp. Thus, a board shrunk or swelled, so as to be warped, is said to wind; and when it is brought straight again it is said to be “out of winding.” So a poor old man in the Easry Union Workhouse, who suffered much from rheumatism, once told me, “I had a terrible poor night surely, I did turn and wind so.’’

WINDER [wind'r] (1) vb. To whimper. (See Whelk, Witter.)

“‘Twas downright miserable to hear him keep all on windering soonsoever he come down of a morning, cos he’d got to go to school.”
WINDER (2) sb. A widgeon.

WINROW [wind-rov] sb. Sheaves of corn set up in a row, one against another, that the wind may blow betwixt them; or a row of grass thrown up lightly for the same purpose in haymaking.

WINTER-PROUD, adj. Said of corn which is too forward for the season in a mild winter.

WIPS [wips] sb., for wisp; like waps for wasp. (Middle-English, wīps, a wisp.) Anything bundled up or carelessly thrown up on a heap; as, "The cloaths lie in a wips," i.e., tumbled, in disorder. The spelling wips occurs in the Rawlinson MS. of Piers the Plowman, B. v. 351, foot note. (See Waps, Haps.)

WIRE-WEEP, sb. The common knotgrass. Polygonum aviculare.

WITTER [wit-ur] vb. To murmur; to complain; to whimper; to make a peevish, fretting noise. (See Whilk, Winder.)

Witty [wit-i] adj. Well-informed; knowing; cunning; skilful.

"He's a very witty man, I can tell ye."

"I, wisdom, dwell with prudence and find out knowledge of witty inventions."—Prov. viii. 12.

WIVVER [wiv-ur] vb. To quiver; to shake.

WOODMOLE, otherwise WOODMEL, sb. A rough material made of coarse wool.

"... One yeard of greene wodmole for an aprune at xijd."—Sandwich Book of Orphans.

WOOD-FALL, sb. A tract of underwood marked out to be cut. The underwood for hop-poles is felled about every twelve years.

WOOD-NOGGIN, sb. A term applied to half-timbered houses.

WOOD-REEVE [wuod-reev] sb. (i.) A woodman; woodcutter; forester; an officer charged with the care and management of woods.

(i.) Sometimes, in North Kent, men who buy lots of standing wood and cut it down to sell for firing, are also called wood-reeves. (See Wood-shuck below.)

1643.—The following extract uses the word in the first sense: "Spent upon our wood reeves for coming to give vs notice of some abuses done to our wood."

—MS. Accounts, St. John's Hospital, Canterbury.

WOOD-SHUCK [wuod-shuk] sb. A buyer of felled wood. (See above.)

"He's a workish sort of a chap."

WORKY-DAY [wurk-i-daiz] sb. Work-day, in contradistinction to Sunday.

"He's gone all weathers, Sunday and worky-day, these seven years."

WORRIT [wur-rit] vb. To worry.

"He's been a worritin' about all the mornin' because he couldn't find that there worm." (See above.)

WORST [wrist] vb. To defeat; to get the better of; to overthrow.

"He's worst'ed himself this time, I fancy, through along o' bein' so woundy clever."

WREEST [reest] sb. That part of a Kentish plough which takes on and off, and on which it rests against the land ploughed up. (See Rice.)

WRAKEN [rak-sun], WREXON [rek-sun] vb. To grow out of bounds (said of weeds); to infect; to taint with disease.
Dictionary of the Kentish Dialect.

WRING [ring] (1) vb. To blister.
   "I wring my shoulder with carrying a twenty-stale ladder."

WRING [ring] (2) vb. To be wet.

WRONGS [rongz] TO, adv. Out of order. "There's not much to wrongs." The antithetical phrase to rights is common enough, but to wrongs is rarely heard out of Kent.

WRONGTAKE [rong-talk] vb. To misunderstand a person.

WUT [wut] vb. Word of command to a cart-horse to stop.
   —East Kent.

WUTS [wuts] sb. pl. Oats.

YAFFLE [yafll] (1) sb. The green woodpecker.

YAFFLE [yafll] (2) vb. (See Yoffle.)

YAR [yar], YARE [yair] adj. Brisk; nimble; swift.
   "Their ships are yare; yours, heavy."
   —Antony and Cleopatra, act iii. sc. 7.

YAOUG [yau-l] adj. Dirty; nasty; filthy.

YAWL [yau'l] vb. When the herrings come off Folkestone the boats all go out with their fleet of nets "yawling," i.e., the nets are placed in the water and allowed to drive along with the tide, the men occasionally taking an anxious look at them, as it is a lottery whether they come across the fish or not.—F. Buckland.

Dictionary of the Kentish Dialect.

YAX [yaks] sb. The axle-tree. Anglo-Saxon, eax, pronounced nearly the same [yaaks].

YELD [yeld] vb. To yield.
   "'Tis a very good yelding field though it is so cledgy."

YENLAD [yenlaid] or YENLET, sb. This word is applied by Lewis to the north and south mouths of the estuary of the Wantsum, which made Thanet an island. The Anglo-Saxon, gen-lad, means a discharging of a river into the sea, or of a smaller river into a larger one. (See Beda, Hist. Eccl. lib. iv. c. 8.)

YEOMAN [yoomun] sb. A person farming his own estate.
   "A knight of Cales [i.e., Cadiz],
   A gentleman of Wales,
   And a laird of the north countree;
   A yeoman of Kent
   With his yearly rent
   Will buy 'em out all three." —Kentish Proverbs.

YET [yet] adv. Used redundantly, as "neither this nor yet that."

YET-NA [yet-na] adv. Yet; as "he is not come home yet-na." Here the suffix na is due to the preceding not. Negatives were often thus reduplicated in Old English.

YOFFLE [yofl], YUFFLE [yufl] vb. To eat or drink greedily, so as to make a noise.
   "So when we lickt de platters out
   An yoffled down de beer;
   I sed to Sal, less walk about,
   And try and find de fair." —Dick and Sal, st. 66.

YOKE [yok] (1) sb. A farm or tract of land of an uncertain quantity. It answers to the Latin, jugum. Cake's Yoke is the name of a farm in the parish of Crundale. It would seem to be such a measure of land as one yoke of oxen could plough and till.
YOKE [yoak] (2) sb. The time (eight hours) for a team to work. Thus, when the horses go out in the early morning and work all day till about two o’clock, and then come home to their stable, they make what is called “one yoke;” but sometimes, when there is a great pressure of work, they will make “two yokes,” going out as before and coming home for a bait at ten o’clock, and then going out for further work at one and coming home finally at six p.m.

YOKELET, sb. An old name in Kent for a little farm or manor.

YOWL [you’l] vb. To howl.

“Swich sorwe he maketh, that the grate tour Resouneth of his youling and clamour.”

—Chaucer, Knightes Tale, 419.
